The ballot count is still being carried out as we publish.
He is short of 3 votes, which the Republican candidate Donald Trump will obtain without much surprise, from the state of Alaska, traditionally acquired for the Trump party. The red wave has indeed taken place, despite the polls (often jeopardizing the 3% margin of error) and the media, in favor of the female candidate, Kamala Harris, since she took over Joe Biden, 107 days before the 4th of November.

MOST OF THE POLLS & MAINSTREAM MEDIA WERE WRONG
The New York Times predicted a Democratic victory, with an economic program so strong presented by Kamala Harris " Vice President Kamala Harris delivered a speech to the Economic Club of Pittsburgh on Monday, pitching her economic approach as “pragmatic” and “practical.” (New York Times, September 30, 2024) then demonstrates again "published James Carville last October 23" Ms. Harris will be elected the next president of the United States. Of this, I am certain. Here are three reasons...." (New York Times).. This bias, conveyed by certain American media, was mistaken in parallel with the polls which announced a very close match Reuters Democratic presidential nominee U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris talks to reporters using her hands while Reuters. Sarah Smith. (BBC 24 October) Although Kamala Harris started very recently, in the campaign race (Two months ago, ) for the Democratic presidential candidate at a joyful national convention in Chicago, taking over the old Joe Biden, too much attacked by Donald Trump, including for his old age (81 years old).

Since then, the Democrats showed an overconfidence, that overshadowed the reality on the ground, denying the possibility of defeat...

The latest polls show a race that has tightened in recent weeks and is now essentially a tie." (BBC news 24 October)

Kamala Harris suffers from the handicap linked to the record of Joe Biden's administration when she was the vice president. She will need to attract voters from beyond the Democrats' base, the working class who is suffering from the inflation's spark, while keeping the fragile coalition of Democrats voters, won, in 2020 buy Joe Biden.

However, the fears and worries conveyed by the media, American and overseas, fearing a civil war, or a repeat of the assault of January 6, 2011, on the Capitol, can finally dissipate, thanks to the victory of Donald Trump.
The 244 million American voters, have made shift the choice towards the Republican right, with more than 5 million differences compared to the late Democratic candidate. The spread is too high for even thinking of a semi victory, yet a certain defeat for Kamala Harris who decided a shameful no show declining the chance to speak and think at least her crew and the Democrats voters and supporters. The empty seats aligned in front of the stage at Howard university, reflected poorly on her.
It is the game, once one lost the game, has to compliment their adversary and concede their defeat as they face a huge gap, of 5 M voters....

Nor, the observers, polls leaders, politician strategic commentators, have seen it coming up, as a red comet...putting Donald Trump at the highest supreme office

DONALD TRUMP SHOULD BE PROUD OF HIS FAIR VICTORY ACCORDING TO THE U.S 1787 CONSTITUTION
The winner of this American presidential election must have 270 electors
The American Constitution, a sacred text governing the majority of the great principles of the world's largest democracy, based on the texts of 1787, whose American electoral system allows the election of the president by indirect universal suffrage via the 538 electors of the 50 states that make up the country and their number is calculated proportionally to the population of each state, with a minimum of three electors per state.

As Americans cast their ballots in this historic election, some votes — as usual — matter more than others.

This election, there are seven states widely seen as competitive: the "Blue Wall" states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, and the Sun Belt states of Nevada, Arizona, North Carolina and Georgia.

The two hundred and forty-four million (244 M) Americans therefore voted indirectly for the candidates, Kamala Harris or Donald Trump, through the five hundred and thirty (530) electors, of which it is enough to obtain 270, to win clearly. However, Donald Trump has already counted 267 electors, including the main ones of the seven (7) swing states (Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Michigan, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin).
